It's time to shift from time-consuming and often frustratingly ineffective teacher-centered workflows to sustainable student-led workflows that position learners at the center of the learning experience and reignite teachers' passion for the profession. Teachers who universally design learning use blended learning models to remove barriers, give students agency, develop dynamic learning communities, and cultivate expert learners will thrive in any teaching and learning landscape.

Each registered participant will receive a free copy of The Shift to Student Led: Reimagining Classroom Workflows with UDL and Blended Learning (Tucker and Novak, 2022).
